About GIET:

Established in 2004, GIET School of Pharmacy is one of the premier institutes situated in Andhra Pradesh. The institute is famous for offering bachelors, masters and doctorate programmes in the field of Pharmaceutical Science stream. The courses are

- B.Pharm,
- M.Pharm,
- Pharm.D,
- Pharm.D (PB)

Admissions are offered on the basis of state level and national level entrances such as AP EAMCET and GPAT.

GIET School of Pharmacy is well known for their academe as well as extracurricular and cultural activities. Internships are also encouraged which helps students in the campus placement drives.

The pharmaceutical industry has a number of unusual characteristics, both in its structure and in the nature of its business operations, which are little known outside the industry but which materially affect the process of bringing new pharmaceuticals to the patient. The development of a new pharmaceutical is very time consuming, extremely costly and high risk, with very little chance of a successful outcome. The process of research & development is described, together with all its challenges.

The commercial realities and constraints of the business, together with its current problems, are discussed, followed by an exploration of some of the likely future commercial and technical developments in the business, including the development of a greener pharmacy

About GIET:

Established in 2004, GIET School of Pharmacy is one of the premier institutes situated in Andhra Pradesh. The institute is famous for offering bachelors, masters and doctorate program in the field of Pharmaceutical Science stream. The courses are

- B.Pharm,
- M.Pharm,
- Pharm.D,
- Pharm.D (PB)

Admissions are offered on the basis of state level and national level entrances such as AP EAMCET and GPAT.

GIET School of Pharmacy is well known for their academe as well as extracurricular and cultural activities. Internships are also encouraged which helps students in the campus placement drives.

Nanotechnology deals with the engineering of systems at the atomic and molecular level. It combines components of molecular chemistry and physics with engineering to gain an advantage over the unique changes to the properties of materials that occur at a nanoscale. A major challenge facing the world is the human body's inability to sometimes absorb entire doses of drugs. This is where nanotechnology comes into the picture. Nanotechnology can be used to transport the drug to specific cells in the body, which not only ensures a more precise treatment but also reduces the chances of failure or rejection.

ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

Antibiotics are medicines that fight bacterial infections in people and animals. They work by killing the bacteria or by making it hard for the bacteria to grow and multiply.

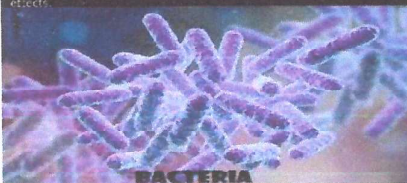

How do use antibiotics correctly?

Always follow the directions carefully. Finish your medicine even if you feel better. If you stop taking them too soon, some bacteria may survive and re-infect you.

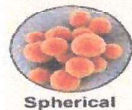

Don't save your antibiotics for later.

Don't share your antibiotic with others.

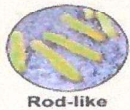

Don't take antibiotics prescribed for someone else. This may delay the best treatment for you, make you even sicker, or cause side effects.

One-day seminar on “Antibiotics and its research” at GIET School of Pharmacy

One-day seminar on “Antibiotics and its research” has been organized by IQAC Cell GIET School of Pharmacy, Rajahmundry, Andhra Pradesh on 12-04-2018 for B.Pharm and Pharm D students.

Mrs Pydi Geetha Bhavani, Associate Professor, Vikas Institute of Pharmaceutical sciences, Rajahmundry, acted as a chief guest & speaker and Dr M.D Dhanaraju GIET School of Pharmacy was presiding over the inaugural function. The welcome address was delivered by Dr R Vijayalakshmi.

The inaugural function was followed by the Seminar on “Antibiotics and its research” by Mrs. Pydi Geetha Bhavani. She focuses on antibiotics. She said that antibiotics are powerful drugs used to treat diseases caused by bacteria. They disrupt essential processes or structures in the bacterial cell. This either kills the bacterium or slows down bacterial growth. Depending on these effects an antibiotic is said to be bactericidal or bacteriostatic. In addition to that, she said that the essential target of therapy with antibiotics is the successful treatment of individual patients with bacterial infections. The optimal clinical treatment results can only be achieved when the toxicity, selection of pathogens and development of resistance are minimized.
